WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Twenty-three. The world stands poised at the edge of World War IV. An explosion of a thermo-nuclear proportions has been set off in Neo-Tokyo. The world, particularly the super powers, wonder what has happened. In Neo-Tokyo in a section known as the "old city," a band of teenaged delinquents led by Kaneda encountered Number 26, a child named Takashi who used extraordinary telekinetic abilities to injure Tetsuo, one of Kaneda's close friends.

As a result Kaneda and Tetsuo become entangled in a power struggle between a mysterious military and scientific organization led by a man known only as the Colonel and an underground resistance group bent on putting a stop to the Colonel's activities.

Among the resistance, Kaneda meets Kay—a girl he alternately maddens and tries to seduce—and Kay's "brother", Ryu. Other important resistance members include Ryu's superior, the opposition party leader Nezu, and a powerful religious leader with strong precognitive gifts, Lady Miyako.

The Colonel has a number of children like Number 26 under his control. Each child possesses a distinct set of psychic talents and is identified by a number marked on the hand. At one time, Lady Miyako was Number 19 in this series. Number 28 is Akira, so powerful that since the war he has been suspended in cryogenic sleep.

The Colonel's staff conducts experiments which awaken tremendous telepathic potential in Tetsuo, who is redubbed Number 41. Able to shrug off the most serious injuries, Tetsuo goes on a killing spree, murdering one of Kaneda's friends and even attacking Kaneda. Then, followed by Kay and Kaneda, Tetsuo sets out in search of Akira, whose powers he fears may rival his own.

Tetsuo repels soldiers armed with the most sophisticated weaponry. The scientists monitoring Akira's cryogenic sleep realize that even in hibernation, Akira's power is responding to Tetsuo's psychic energy. When Tetsuo reaches Akira's resting place, the cryogenic chamber cracks from within and Akira—dazed and docile following his long sleep—emerges.

Terrified of what may occur, the Colonel summons the powerful SOL military satellite and orders that its laser cannon be fired at Tetsuo and Akira. The two are separated by the blasts. Akira is saved by Kay and Kaneda, but Tetsuo is less fortunate. The laser strikes his left arm.

Neo-Tokyo is placed in a state of military emergency following the disaster. "Caretaker robots" patrol the streets, dealing harshly with looters and restoring order. Discredited and made a scapegoat following the disaster, the Colonel—who successfully conceals the truth about what has occurred despite leaks to the media—decides to use the emergency as an excuse to hunt down and destroy his enemies. With the aid of his inner circle, the Colonel stages a successful coup d'état.

Nezu, planning to exploit Akira for his own purposes, kidnaps the child and orders his staff to kill Kaneda, Kay, and Chiyoko, who nevertheless manage to escape and free Akira. He is, however, stolen from them again, this time by Sakaki, Miki, and Mozu—young psychics trained by Lady Miyako, who now knows that Nezu has betrayed her. The Colonel, with his troops and his psychic children, is also frantically trying to find Akira before he fully awakens. On the Colonel's orders, Takashi kills Mozu during a psychic showdown. Nezu corners

Sakaki and Akira, but before he can do them any harm, Miki sacrifices her life, enabling the pair to escape. Sakaki hides Akira in a dumpster. There he is found by Ryu—one of the few people who doesn't recognize the child. Ryu and Akira encounter Nezu, who blurts out the boy's name. Ryu realizes that his former master is a traitor. When Nezu tries to kill them, Ryu guns him down and leaves him for dead.

As Sakaki and Ryu fight for control of Akira, they are suddenly joined by Kaneda, Kay and Chiyoko. Then all six of them are surrounded by the Colonel's troops. Sakaki makes a last ditch effort to escape and is killed, her spirit embraced by Lady Miyako as she dies. Takashi fondly greets Akira and reintroduces him to their fellow psychics Kiyoko and Masaru. Then Nezu, dying and determined on revenge, arrives and tries to kill Akira, killing Takashi instead.

The trauma of Takashi's death galvanizes Akira, who fully awakens and unleashes a light blast powerful enough to devastate the entire city. Acting quickly, Masaru and Kiyoko sweep most of the people in the area upward, into the shelter of a skyscraper. The entire resistance group is separated, and Kaneda is last seen vanishing towards the sky. In the wake of the disaster, Lady Miyako opens her temple and offers shelter and comfort to those in need.

Afterwards, as Akira sits alone, telekinetically playing with bits of rubble, Tetsuo finally reappears.

An aerial, high-angle view of a city, likely Neo-Tokyo, completely submerged in a deep blue liquid. The city's dense urban landscape, with its numerous skyscrapers and buildings, is visible as dark, jagged islands rising from the sea. The perspective is from directly above, looking down on the submerged metropolis.

THE MAKING OF AKIRA THE EPIC COMIC PART IV—WORKING ON AKIRA AT EPIC

Over the past few months, we've examined the art, coloring, and scripting of the Epic version of Akira. These three elements are combined by the staff at the Epic editorial offices to form each issue of Akira. In our fourth and final article on The Making of Akira, we will explain the role of editorial, as well as the duties of the staff involved.

Editor Margaret Clark and Assistant Editor Marie Javins are in charge of producing Akira for Epic. They traffic the various elements, create mechanical representations of the final product, make necessary script or art corrections, and design covers and text pages.

The most apparent role of editorial is in trafficking. Tokyo's Kodansha Ltd sends the original "mirror" proofs, as well as the script translation, to Epic. Epic in turn sends the script to Jo Duffy, who then "westernizes" the script and returns the new version to Epic. The editors then send the script to Kodansha for approval. Upon approval, the script is sent to Michael Higgins, who letters the word balloons and returns the lettering to Epic. The "mirror" proofs and the lettering is given to the Marvel "Bullpen", where graphic artists diligently paste the words down onto the art, and return the proofs to Margaret Clark. She carefully checks the pasted-up proofs, and makes necessary corrections.

The Epic intern then photocopies the proofs, and copies are again mailed to Kodansha for approval. Ms. Yuka Ando sends her comments, and the proofs are put back into the Bullpen for the necessary corrections.

Simultaneously, Margaret Clark and Marie Javins work on other aspects of the book. They choose scenes from each issue for the cover and back cover, as well as the frontispiece and text pages, and have photostats made of the chosen scenes. The artwork is then sent to Steve Oliff and Olyoptics for coloring, while the stats are pasted down onto mechanicals and marked that they are "For Position Only." This indicates to the printer that the mechanicals are only a representation, and the actual art is to be shot separately from the cover. The Epic staff also chooses the colors for the cover. Clark says that she attempts to choose colors that look attractive when put next to each other, since in Japan, the Epic Akira's are sold in boxed sets of three.

Margaret Clark writes the teaser for the back cover, and edits the "What Has Gone Before" summary, while her assistant works on the text pages that appear at the end of Akira. Together they spec the type for the three text items as well as the indicia, credits, price and cover information. They also spec type for any signs that appear within the artwork for the issue, and for the computer-like speech of the caretaker robots.

After the type is generated, it is given back to the Bullpen along with the cover mechanical and interior art pages for paste-up. The proofs and mechanicals are sent to the printer, as are Steve Oliff's color-coding disks. The Epic staff waits for the return of chromalins, as detailed in the last article.

After the chromalins are marked-up and returned to the separator, the separator makes the detailed corrections and, as discussed last month, the printer pulls "blues" on the book. The blues are also marked-up or given the go ahead, and Akira is printed.

The production of a single issue of Akira is complete. But the work on the issue will continue, with the Epic staff watching shipping dates and tracking the printing of the issue. Copies of the printed issue must later be tracked down, and mailed to all of the parties involved in its publishing. Finally, the issue is finished, and the next issue is well underway.

The waters have receded from the city of Neo-Tokyo revealing the wounds below. Once gleaming skyscrapers lean at dizzying angles, their jagged, pitted facades gaping stupified at the sky. ■ the canyons of these buildings, surrounded by their rubble, huddle the cold, the hungry, the hurt, the dying—and the countless dead. For the dazed people left in Neo-Tokyo it is ■ daily struggle just to survive. But there are a few who are trying to do more than just survive. There is the gentle Lady Mikayo who has thrown open her temple doors to those who seek refuge. And in the west there is talk of a god-like figure who tends to the hungry and has been seen healing the injured—the Emperor Akira.

AKI

BY KATSUHI

An aerial, isometric view of a dense, futuristic city. The city is composed of numerous tall, rectangular buildings of varying heights and designs, some with multiple levels and intricate details. The buildings are packed closely together, creating a complex urban landscape. A large, bright blue, ethereal cloud or smoke plume rises from the center of the city, partially obscuring the buildings beneath it. The overall color palette is dominated by the blue of the cloud and the grey/brown tones of the city buildings.
